

Department of Telugu

Best Practices

1. Title: - Classes in Epics (Ithihaasa taragathulu)

2. Objective of practice:-

To make the students to read the great epics of India i.e. Ramayana and Mahabharata in their own native language and understand their significance. The teacher will use her knowledge to make the morals and values taught by the books understandable by the students. The students in turn will capture the greatness of the Indian culture along with the story of the books.

3. The Practice:-

Every evening after the completion of classes students will get the department of Telugu. One of the students will study lines from the book aloud. The teacher will interrupt the reading at regular intervals when she feels that there is a need for explanation. Thus the students understand the Epic better.

4. Evidence of success:-

Students started reading books bought with money of their own after having attended the session. This is the glaring example of the success.

5. Problems Encountered and Resources required:-

So far problems for encountered. Students belonging to other religions also enjoyed this programme. As only one back is needed, no worries about financial resources
